

Editors' Note

Pauline Jacobson

Published online: 1 May 2012
© Springer Science+Business Media B.V. 2012

With this issue ends my tenure as Editor-in-Chief of Linguistics and Philosophy. I am delighted to be turning the editorship over to Thomas Ede Zimmermann and Graeme Forbes. I am sure that the journal will continue to prosper and be the top journal in the areas of natural language semantics and pragmatics, philosophy of language and the other related areas traditionally falling under the scope of this journal. The new team represents the return of the tradition of two editors—one from Linguistics and one from Philosophy—to help deepen the scope of the journal. The new editors have assembled a wonderful expanded team of Associate Editors, and I am very much looking forward to seeing the journal flourish under their editorship.

Being editor of Linguistics and Philosophy has been an extremely rewarding—occasionally challenging—but overall very satisfying experience. I would like to thank the editorial and production team at Springer for making things as smooth as possible. And I would especially like to express my deepest thanks to the Associate Editors that I have worked with over the course of 8 years: Kent Bach, Daniel Büring, Paul Dekker, Shalom Lappin, Peter Laserson, Beth Levin, Chris Potts, Julie Sedivy, Martin Stokhof, and Ede Zimmermann.

P. Jacobson (✉)
Brown University, Providence, RI, USA
e-mail: pauline_jacobson@brown.edu