

NOTES ON CONTRIBUTORS

MICHAL VALČO, Ph.D. (Comenius University) is a full professor at the Department of Church History, the Evangelical Lutheran Theological Faculty, Comenius University in Bratislava, Slovakia. Since his induction into the European Academy of Sciences and Arts in Salzburg, Austria, in August 2015, Prof. Valčo has furthered his scholarly pursuits by embracing a Senior Research Fellowship at the Institute of Advanced Studies, PAN in Warsaw, from October 2019 until June 2020. His scholarly inquiry is predominantly focused on Theology and the Philosophy of Religion, with a particular emphasis on the works of Søren Kierkegaard, Charles Taylor, and Dietrich Bonhoeffer. Prof. Valčo is deeply engaged in fostering dialogue between religion and science, addressing the evolving discourse surrounding Transhumanism and Artificial Intelligence. In 2021, he was awarded a Templeton research grant in combination with research mobility focused on Transhumanism and the future of Imago Dei theologies. Additionally, his research extends into the theological contributions of Martin Luther and Leonard Stöckel, marking a significant secondary focus of his academic endeavors.

JANA BÍROVÁ, Ph.D. (Charles University in Prague), works as an associate professor (docent) at the Department of the French Language and Literature, Faculty of Education, Charles University in Prague. She is a member of editorial boards and a reviewer of several international scientific journals. Her scientific interests are teaching methodology of French and English, French linguistics, plurilingualism and interculturality, adult education, and lifelong learning. She is the author of more than 80 publications, including articles published in Scopus / Web of Science-indexed journals, Slovak pedagogical journals, conference papers, monographs, university textbooks, and secondary school textbooks. She has been the President of Slovak Teachers of French since 2008. Jana Birova is a member of the European Observatory for Plurilingualism in Paris. Her association is a member of FIPF (Federation of Teachers of French). She evaluated universities for Times Higher Education University rankings in 2014/2015 and 2022/2023, Scimago university ranking, and Quacquarelli Symonds.

BENDA HOFMEYR (Radboud University) is a Professor in the Department of Philosophy, University of Pretoria, South Africa. She lived and worked in the Netherlands while she completed her doctoral studies and postdoctoral research. She still maintains strong collaborative ties with the Radboud University, Nijmegen, where she was awarded her doctoral degree in Philosophy on the work of Foucault and Levinas. Her research interests fall within the broad ambit of contemporary continental philosophy (especially thinkers following in Heidegger's footsteps, with an emphasis on post-structuralism and phenomenology), and her work testifies to an enduring fascination with the inextricable entanglement of the ethical with the political. Her thinking is informed by the interfaces between European and non-Western (especially post-colonial African) philosophy and the possibility of dialogue across these apparently divergent yet fundamentally intertwined traditions of thought. For more information about her research and publications, please visit www.bendahofmeyr.com.
