

KIMBERLY KESSLER FERZAN AND JOHN F. K. OBERDIEK

INTRODUCTIONS

(Accepted 30 November 2012)

We are honored to take the helm of Law and Philosophy. Over the past few years, we have served as the Associate Editors, and in that capacity, have had the opportunity to relish the abundance of high quality manuscripts submitted to the journal for publication. We look forward to continuing the journal's legacy of publishing top quality articles in the field. We also look forward to working with an outstanding editorial board of leading scholars from across the globe.

As we survey the articles that are already in the publication stream for Volume 32, we are proud of the outstanding manuscripts that await publication and we are delighted to begin our editorship with a special double issue devoted to Victor Tadros' The Ends of Harm. No one can doubt the contribution Tadros' book makes to our understanding of criminal punishment, and the symposium contributors forward the discussion and raise important objections. As that outstanding special issue makes its way into print, we look forward to the incoming submissions on Cecile Fabre's Cosmopolitan War, a special issue that will be guest edited by Jonathan Quong.

Although this change is a professional delight, it is also a moment of sadness for us, as we say goodbye to our outgoing Editor-in-Chief Doug Husak, who departs to become sole Editor-in-Chief of Criminal Law and Philosophy. Doug is organized, collaborative, and insightful, but more importantly, he is a dear friend to both of us. We will miss his good judgment and sharp wit. We thank Doug for all that he has done, and look forward to years of friendship to come.
