Acknowledgements The special issue arose out a workshop on figurative speech which in turn owes its origins to work by Prof. John Barnden (Emeritus Professor of AI at the University of Birmingham, UK) on metaphor, metonymy and propositional attitudes. This workshop was also funded by the Leverhulme Trust, Mind Association, the Aristotelian Society, Analysis Trust, British Society of Aesthetics, and the Institute of Philosophy, London. The Leverhulme Trust's support was through Research Project Grant F/00094/BE to John Barnden, 2010–2013. I'm grateful to John, the funders, the participants, and to Wayne Davis, editor of Philosophical Studies. All provided wonderful support for the endeavour.
